STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Description of Property – Peterkin House, 1167 Lakeshore Road East

The Peterkin House is a large stone building, built as a residence, which is located on the north side of Lakeshore Road East, east of Burgundy Drive.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value

Design Value or Physical Value

The Peterkin House’s cultural heritage value lies in its design or physical value as a rare and early example of a stone house inspired by the Arts and Crafts movement with elements of both Queen Anne and Bungalow style architecture built circa 1916-17. It features stone exterior walls, a two and one half storey form with a front and side porch, chimneys, lintels and sills all executed in stone. The house features a gambrel roof, corner tower, dormers and wood windows with decorative lead-pane glass. A second feature with cultural heritage value are the stone gate posts located adjacent to Lakeshore Road East, which were salvaged in the 1920s from the Gooderham family’s Dearcroft Estate in Toronto.

Historical Value or Associative Value

The Peterkin House’s cultural heritage value also lies in its associations with Charles Peterkin, a local Fenian Raids veteran and Toronto businessman, who purchased the property in 1915. Peterkin, along with his wife Annie Josephine, had the house constructed c.1916-1917 as a home in which to retire.

The Peterkin House’s cultural heritage value also lies in its associations with Albert Edward Gooderham, a philanthropist and member of the prominent Gooderham family of Toronto, who owned the house in the 1930s and 1940s. Gooderham created a home for children with tuberculosis, and funded the University of Toronto’s Anti-Toxine farm, which supplied serum for the Second British Army during World War I.

Contextual Value

The Peterkin House’s cultural heritage value also lies in its contextual value for its prominent location on Lakeshore Road in Oakville. The house is also located in and reinforces the character of an area of Oakville known locally as “Millionaire’s Row” where a number of wealthy Toronto Residents built estates in the first three decades of the 20th Century.

Description of Heritage Attributes

The heritage attributes of 1167 Lakeshore Road East refer to the Peterkin House and stone gate posts only.

Key attributes of the Peterkin House which embody its physical and historical significance as a rare and early example of a stone house inspired by the Arts and Crafts movement with elements of both Queen Anne and Bungalow style include its:

- The 2 ½ storey form of the stone portion of the house;
- Form of the main Gambrel roof, the tower roof, the two front dormers on the south elevation, the south porch roof and the northwest porch roof;
- Fenestration of windows and doors on the original stone portion of the Peterkin house;
- All historic wood windows and remaining lead-pane glass, including those windows which have become interior windows through additions;
- Historic wood storm windows;
- Historic wood window and door trim;
- Wood door surround, including windows, of front entrance;
- Stone sills and stone lintels;
- Historic wood cornice on the north, west and south walls; and
